What is CPI and Why is it Important for Anyone Managing a Budget?

The Consumer Price Index (CPI) report from the Bureau of Labor Statistics presents price changes in the cost of consumer goods and services on a monthly basis. It tracks and reports the change over the past 12 months as a percentage. Of particular interest to Nutrition Programs can be impacts on the costs for food and fuel. For example, the report for August 2021 showed an overall 12 month rolling increase in the costs of good and services of 5.3%, down from 5.5% in July. When you take this general measure and apply it to a Nutrition Program with a budgeted cost of $10,000/month, the actual monthly cost would be $10,500. Taking it a bit further and looking out to the end of 2021, this could mean accumulated unbudgeted added costs of $3,000.00 or more. Attention to this readily accessible measure can help in managing current Nutrition Programs and preparing for future budgets. More on CPI can be found at <https://www.bls.gov/cpi>
