

Do you want to create a culture where people want to show up and do their best work?

An inefficient work culture impacts the stability (and productivity) of a workforce. Instability depletes resources, drives burnout, and creates a revolving door of vacated positions. Lisa Haen works with leaders who want to attract, engage, and retain qualified workers to improve performance stability and make work-life more manageable.

Through impactful keynotes, results-driven events, and experiential workshops, Lisa shares inspired content that accelerates learning. Her key agility principles guide leaders in their quest to make work-life more manageable.

Lisa designed the Culture Agility® model using inside-out behavioral science, proven to build foundational competence and strengthen skills that improve team performance and fuel stable business growth.

If you're looking to improve and strengthen performance and create a culture where people want to show up to do their best work, hire Lisa for your next event and start positioning your organization as the best investment choice for qualified talent.
